Why should students read during the summer?

University of Tennessee, Knoxville, faculty members Richard Allington and Anne McGill-Franzen have completed a three-year study showing that students lose up to three months of learning every summer—skills they worked hard to acquire during the school year. However, the study showed a significantly higher level of reading achievement in students who took part in summer reading at home.

Allington compares the slide in reading ability to an athlete's fitness. "Just like hockey players lose some of their skills if they stay off their skates and off the ice for three months, children who do not read in the summer lose two to three months of reading development," Allington said.

Talk About It:
Part of growing as a reader is learning how to think while you read. Ask each other questions before, during, and after reading:

- What was most important about what we just read?
- How did the characters change over time?
- What was your favorite part of that section?
- Did you read anything that might impact your life? How?
- Does this text remind you of something you have read, seen, or heard before? How?

Get Caught Reading:
Set an example by reading in public. Let everyone see you reading a newspaper or browsing through a novel on the beach or beside the pool. Liven up chore time or meal time by taking turns working while one person reads aloud a favorite book or an exciting new novel. Have fun!

“Isn't it odd how much fatter a book gets when you've read it several times?” Mo had said..."As if something were left between the pages every time you read it. Feelings, thoughts, sounds...and then, when you look at the book again many years later, you find yourself there, too, a slightly younger self, slightly different, as if the book had preserved you like a pressed flower...both strange and familiar.”

The Themes

Many of the things you will read and write in English I explore the idea of what it means to be a hero, what actions one might take that define one as an antihero, and what can be learned from the experiences of both. Some of the books on these lists are more challenging than others, but all explore these themes through events (plot), characters, and conflicts.

Summer Reading Project

Consult with teachers and/or librarians to choose two books (one fiction and one informational) or like those on this brochure. With parent approval of the choices, students will read the two books over the summer.

All rising 8th grade GT (HONORS English I) students will read The Giver in addition to a second selection with the shared theme of Utopia or dystopia, examples of which appear on this brochure. Teachers of HONORS English I classes taught on the high school campus will choose one title from the brochure for required summer reading in addition to a second title (chosen by student or teacher), for a total of two selections. Each school will share rewards and expectations for when school starts. Register for the Berkeley County Library System summer program at berkeleylibraryreadsquared.com and read for prizes.

Have a great summer and enjoy the magic of books!
